The Synod

In recent weeks, several people have asked me about the synod that has been called for by Pope Francis. The word “synod” means “assembly”; historically, synods, or assemblies, of bishops have been called together by various Popes through the years to discuss issues of importance in the life of the Church. The current synod that people have been asking about is a Synod on Synodality. (“Synodality” is aptly defined as “walking together.”) In this synod, not only the bishops, but all Catholics, are being called to discern how we can best “walk together” in the way of Christ. The three focal points of the discussion are communion, participation, and mission.

How can we participate in this worldwide process of discernment? I refer you to this page of the website of our diocese: rcbo.org/synod There you will find some general background on the history of synods, a special message from Bishop Vann, and a survey-type section in which you can submit to the diocese your thoughts on our journey together in communion, participation, and mission. Your input will be valuable to the diocese, which will send a synthesis of the input to the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. The U.S. Bishops will in turn produce a document on the nationwide level, which will go to the Holy See.

As Bishop Vann exhorts us, let's all pray for this synod, that the Holy Spirit may guide us in our journey together: a journey of communion, participation, and mission.

El Sínodo

En las últimas semanas, varias personas me han preguntado sobre el sínodo que ha convocado el Papa Francisco. La palabra “sínodo” significa “asamblea”; Históricamente, los sínodos o asambleas de obispos han sido convocados por varios Papas a lo largo de los años para discutir temas de importancia en la vida de la Iglesia. El sínodo actual sobre el que la gente ha estado preguntando es un Sínodo sobre sinodalidad. (“Sinodalidad” se define acertadamente como “caminar juntos”). En este sínodo, no solo los obispos, sino todos los católicos, están llamados a discernir cómo podemos “caminar juntos” en el camino de Cristo. Los tres puntos centrales de la discusión son la comunión, la participación y la misión.

¿Cómo podemos participar en este proceso mundial de discernimiento? Lo remito a esta página del sitio web de nuestra diócesis: rcbo.org/synod Allí encontrará algunos antecedentes generales sobre la historia de los sínodos, un mensaje especial del obispo Vann y una sección tipo encuesta en la que puede enviar a la diócesis sus pensamientos sobre nuestro camino juntos en comunión, participación y misión. Su aporte será valioso para la diócesis, que enviará una síntesis del aporte a la Conferencia de Obispos Católicos de los Estados Unidos. Los obispos estadounidenses, a su vez, producirán un documento a nivel nacional, que irá a la Santa Sede.

Como nos exhorta el obispo Vann, oremos todos por este sínodo, para que el Espíritu Santo nos guíe en nuestro camino juntos: un camino de comunión, participación y misión.

Gratefully Yours / Con Agradecimiento,
