Before You Open that Email...

I have heard that some of you have received fraudulent emails from persons claiming to be me and asking for money. Please do not respond to such fraudulent emails -- and when in doubt, please call the Parish directly at 949-496-1307. I have gathered some information from our IT consultants at the Parish, as well as from the IT Department at the Diocese for your review. Thank you.

Fr. Brendan Manson
Pastor

Don't trust the name

A favorite phishing tactic is to spoof the display name of an email. It's easy to set the display name of an email to anything – you can do it yourself in Outlook or Gmail. It's the simplest and most easily detected form of e-mail. Spoofing involves simply setting the display name or “from” field of outgoing messages to show a name or address other than the actual one from which the message is sent. When this simplistic method is used, you can tell where the mail originated by checking the mail header.

You can't trust the header

It's not just the display name that can be spoofed, but also the email header. Emails are built on some very old technology (in internet terms): SMTP, or Simple Mail Transport Protocol. When you send an email, it goes to a SMTP server first, then the message is relayed from SMTP server to SMTP server across the internet. When the message arrives at its penultimate destination, the email is stored in the recipient's mailbox at a POP3 (Post Office Protocol 3) server. Finally, the message is fetched by an email client so the recipient can read it. While this may seem complicated, the important thing to remember is that SMTP just passes along what it was given. Clever fraudsters can fool the SMTP server into sending along an email that isn't legitimate.

There are several, technical ways to figure out if this is the case, but the simplest method is to see where the “reply to” section of the full header will lead you to. If it indicates that your reply would be redirected to an address that's different from the sender's address, then you have good cause to be suspicious.

Hover before you click

Clicking links in emails is inherently risky – you don't know where a button, link or video will actually send you. But, if you hover your mouse over any links embedded in the body of the email, you can see the raw link. If it looks strange, don't click it – there's a good chance the email is fraudulent.

Remember the basics

If an email has spelling mistakes, requests personal information, or is written in threatening language, you should be suspicious. If you did not initiate contact with the sender, be wary and think where they could have found your contact details.

Trust your instincts

Given today's e-mail infrastructure, there's not much that can be done to prevent spoofing. Companies and organizations can tighten up their mail servers. This just makes it a little more difficult for criminals, not impossible.

Appearances can be deceiving. Just because an email has convincing logos, language, and a seemingly valid email address, does not mean that it's legitimate. Be skeptical when it comes to your email messages—if it looks even remotely suspicious, don't open it. If something looks off, there's probably a good reason why. If you receive a message that seems suspicious, it's usually in your best interest to avoid acting on the message.

From the Diocese of Orange Regarding Digital Fraud Email, Text and Phone Security Reminder

Impersonation fraud is a multi-billion criminal industry. Diocesan employees and parishioner families have been targeted and victimized by fraudsters impersonating priests and employees of the Diocese. These attacks come via email, text message, and phone. This fraud through misrepresentation and impersonation is a real problem that we all must protect ourselves against. No amount of technology alone will stop this kind of fraud.

There is a solution to this huge fraud problem. Be aware of the fact that email, texting, and phone calls are not trusted forms of communication. Email and text messages are not secure, not personal, and is a major vehicle of fraud. Never trust a message unless you are 100 percent sure of the content and sender. When in doubt, do not engage with the caller, open attachments, click on pictures, or follow links that you do not trust. Always verify authenticity through a trusted means of communication.

For example, if a pastor requests money due to being in a foreign country, do not use the contact information provided in the message to contact the pastor. Contact the parish or school before responding to verify the contact information. Contacting the parish or school for verification in a trusted way is important. Do not trust unknown web sites for the proper contact information. Secure web sites (using HTTPS) can be trusted if you recognize the web address (URL). If there is a doubt, compare the contact information on the parish or school site with the RCBO.org site contact information.

This might seem like a lot of work, but it is the best way to protect yourself from fraud.

Ephesians: Discover your Inheritance

Paul's letter to the Ephesians reveals many remarkable gifts that we as Christians are given in the Church. This letter tells us about the nature of the Church - as a body, as a household, as a mystery, as a communion, as a bride, and as an army.

It shows us the great inheritance that awaits us as sons and daughters, adopted fully into the family of God. It reveals how God's great love for us can transform our daily lives if we allow it. This eight-part Bible Study, presented by Jeff Cavins, will enrich your faith and show you how to live it out.

All are welcome!

MASS IN SOLIDARITY WITH IMMIGRANT SISTERS & BROTHERS

Saturday, September 8, 2018 at 1:00 p.m.

Arboretum at Christ Cathedral
13280 Chapman Avenue | Garden Grove, CA 92840

We must allow our hearts to break for these families and refuse the partisan politics of fear and scapegoating in favor of public policy that welcomes immigrants, promotes family unity, and protects the vulnerable. As we gather today may we hold these children, parents, families in our hearts asking our Blessed Lady of Guadalupe and the hosts of heaven to come to their aid and comfort.
-Bishop Kevin Vann, (June 24, 2018)

Celebrant: The Most. Rev. Timothy Freyer, Auxiliary Bishop of Orange

In solidarity with migrant sisters and brothers, here in Orange County and throughout the world, come together in prayer and join Pope Francis's call to encounter and walk with migrants and refugees in support and solidarity through the "Share the Journey" campaign (sharejourney.org).

If you are interested in being part of the St. Edward delegation, please contact Lupe Ojeda at 949-429-2889 or email: lojeda@stedward.com
