Stained Glass

Last Monday, Deacon Mike, Rosy, and I went to the home and studio of Dirk Maes. Dirk is the son of the artist who made our original stained glass windows in the church. Dirk learned the art of crafting stained glass from his father, and has taken on the project of making the stained glass for the front of our new narthex. The original six panels will be incorporated into a design of 22 panels. The design was inspired by some original drawings from Dirk's father. Like the original panels, these are a special kind of stained glass called dalle de verre; it is about an inch thick and is very heavy. Dirk showed us many shelves of this glass, in a wide variety of colors. He showed us the diamond-bladed saw with which he cuts the glass into the various shapes called for by the design. He demonstrated the special technique he uses to put facets in the glass. He even let us put some of the pieces into their proper place in one of the window panes.

My visit with Dirk was not only interesting, informative, and entertaining; it was also a way for me to get directly in touch with the artistry and craftsmanship that are going into this major aspect of our narthex. Every piece of glass is chosen and shaped according to the artist's specifications. The pieces are joined together by a special kind of epoxy. Everything is done with the kind of deliberation and care that a true artist must have.

What was the inspiration of the design? Here are the words of the designer, Kaj:

My inspiration for this project comes from my friend [Dirk] asking for help. Secondly, it was his father's vision and design that was so inspiring. Third, it was the pure enlightenment that guided my path. By studying the original drawings and notes, I was given a clear vision of where the design was to go; it had movement and grandeur and a timeless aspect to inspire. My hope was to honor the original design and designer, to carry it through its spark, its spirit, to invite imagination and enjoyment to others.

Vitral

El lunes pasado, Deacon Mike, Rosy y yo fuimos a la casa y estudio de Dirk Maes. Dirk es el hijo del artista que hizo nuestras vidrieras originales en la iglesia. Dirk aprendió el arte de hacer vidrieras de su padre y ha asumido el proyecto de hacer las vidrieras para el frente de nuestro nuevo nártex. Los seis paneles originales se incorporarán a un diseño de 22 paneles. El diseño se inspiró en algunos dibujos originales del padre de Dirk. Al igual que los paneles originales, estos son un tipo especial de vidrieras dalle de verre; llamadas dalle de verre tiene aproximadamente una pulgada de espesor y es muy pesado. Dirk nos mostró muchas baldas de este vaso, en una gran variedad de colores. Nos mostró la sierra de hoja de diamante con la que corta el vidrio en las distintas formas que exige el diseño. Demostró la técnica especial que usa para poner facetas en el vidrio. Incluso nos dejó poner algunas de las piezas en su lugar en uno de los cristales de la ventana.

Mi visita a Dirk no solo fue interesante, informativa y entretenida; también fue una forma de ponerme en contacto directo con el arte y la artesanía que se encuentran en este importante aspecto de nuestro nártex. Cada pieza de vidrio se elige y se forma de acuerdo con las especificaciones del artista. Las piezas están unidas entre sí por un tipo especial de epoxi. Todo está hecho con el tipo de deliberación y cuidado que debe tener un verdadero artista.

¿Cuál fue la inspiración del diseño? Estas son las palabras del diseñador, Kaj:

Mi inspiración para este proyecto viene de mi amigo [Dirk] pidiendo ayuda. En segundo lugar, fue la visión y el diseño de su padre lo que fue tan inspirador. Tercero, fue la iluminación pura la que guió mi camino. Al estudiar los dibujos y notas originales, obtuve una visión clara de hacia dónde debía ir el diseño; tenía movimiento y grandeza y un aspecto atemporal para inspirar. Mi esperanza era honrar el diseño y el diseñador originales, llevarlo a través de su chispa, su espíritu, para invitar a la imaginación y el disfrute a los demás.

Gratefully Yours/ Con Agradecimiento,
